MRS. THOMAS CARLYLE.

One Occasion When the Clever Woman Was Surprised and Confounded.

The brightest time for Mrs. Carlyle's talk was during dinner. Day after day she poured forth witty stories, most of which I have almost forgotten, but in any case it would be deprecating to attempt to repeat almost any of them. The characteristics of living men and women were often dashed off in a few pithy words, not without satirical touches. George Henry Lewes was not one of her favorites, but I noted with pleasure the way in which she spoke of the wonderful transformation effected by the influence on him of George Eliot.

One of her experiences was when visiting a shoemaker's shop to make a purchase, at the time when sandals were worn, like those represented in the original illustrations of Dickens. The sandals were of black ribbon, uncut until the shoes were worn by the purchaser at home. Mrs. Carlyle tried on many shoes, and each time that a shoe proved unsuitable she unconsciously along it on to her left arm. Being at last suited, and having paid her bill, she left the shop, and had walked a little way when she heard a shout behind her. Looking back she saw the shoemaker rapping after her, much excited and insisting on her returning the stolen shoes. Looking down, she saw to her surprise a number of shoes dangling from her arm. The man indignantly asked her name and address. Her astonishment was such that her name was obliterated for a time from her memory and all she could recollect was her maiden name, "Miss Welsh." The humor in this tale was enhanced to those who knew her from its being so much out of keeping with her usual shrewdness and self-possession that no one could have predicted it of her.

Her death, which, a year later, when "Mr. Silvester," as she named her coachman, during a drive, turned and looked into the carriage—surprised at receiving no orders as to route—and saw her sitting, lifeless, with a pet dog on her knee, has often risen to my thoughts.

My strongest impression was of the deep mutual love evidently subsisting between Mrs. Carlyle and her husband. Every subject we discussed seemed to recall thoughts of him. If the piano were opened, his song of the "blue day" was referred to or asked for; if any literary men were mentioned, his opinion of him was given, or a story was told showing his relation to other men of note. I felt as if listening to the love tale of a youthful engaged couple, and when, in later days, I found opened up a floodgate of misunderstanding I felt assured there was a radical misconception of the true state of affairs.—New York Independent.

USE NO LATHER.

Chinese Shave Frequently With a Wet Towel to Soften the Face.

Considering that the inhabitants of the middle kingdom use the razor more than any other nation in the world, it is passing strange that they never discovered the advantages of lathering first, says the Windsor Magazine. Dabbling a warm wet cloth on the chin or the scalp is a poor substitute for soap. Hair cutting, as we practice it in the west, is to them "all unknown," except in a few localities where foreigners are numerous. A traveler when in the province of Kwantung sent for a man to shear his locks, and he began nibbling away at his scalp without troubling about such a trifling as a comb. At the third snip the man stopped him and asked him if he had ever cut a foreigner's hair before. Oh, yes. When was that? Oh, last year, when he cut the hair of a German customs officer who had died.

But in the matter of shaving there are few more doct—considering the latherless way he does it and the fact that he uses a little three cornered soft iron knife as a razor—than the Chinese figaro. Was not the chief of all his tribe enrolled by an emperor ages back for dexterously cleaving a mosquito that had settled on the imperial nose? One advantage gained by patronizing the Chinese barber—in the case of Europeans—is he doesn't mind coming to your room every morning and shaving you before you wash and dress. But the native also generally waits to be shaved before washing, even if he has to wait a week.

Very Tall Kneeling.

One of the officers of the rebellion had a private in his company whom the boys jestingly named "Little Mack," because of his bigness. He was the tallest man in the company—about 8 feet 3 inches—and one of the bravest in the regiment.

On one occasion when the men were ordered to kneel down behind a stone fence in preparation for an expected assault the officer, who was preparing a surprise for the enemy, on inspecting the line was astonished to see one large, serene face above the top of the fence. He shouted out angrily, "There, you— you man with the head up, kneel down, sir!" The man did not move, and again the officer thundered, "Why don't you kneel down, sir?"

Oblivious to any danger and blind to the significance of his head being exposed, "Little Mack" answered, "I am kneeling down."

"Then," shouted the officer, "put your head down, or you will have it shot off, confound you!"

Thereupon "Little Mack" unrolled down behind the fence, grieving because the captain had howled at him.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Dangerous.

Father—What are you doing, Emma? Daughter—Oh, Arthur is coming to-night, and I'm cooking something for him.

Father—Emma, Emma, you'd better be careful. You'll keep on cooking for him till he breaks the engagement.—Heiter Welt.

Paper Thirty Years Ago.

In looking back at what was written in regard to paper making not more than 30 years ago a popular authority, treating of the discovery of paper making from esparto, the source being Spain, cited Spain as an unstable country. The great business of paper making might be quite undone or made helpless if it were to depend on Spain for esparto. Next bamboo as a crude material was discussed and found impracticable. Its bulk and the cost of carriage would render bamboo for paper stock impossible. Bamboo, the sturdy residuum of the sugar cane was deemed only 10 per cent of fiber.

The writer, treating of cotton rags, said that these could be made dependent upon, and next considered proposed utilization of wood. He said this out of the question. "Wood," he said, "contains but a small amount of fiber and has little selling power. Then the writer of the article cited several mills in England and America which had tried to make paper from such wood pulp had abandoned the attempt. It was too expensive, costing $24 to $25 the ton, and so the vision arrived at was that wood was never likely to be used to any considerable extent.

So much for prophecy.—New Times.

Color In Electric Light.

The colors in the shop windows of Broadway come out at night under the influence of the electric light in a wonderfully pure way. In the past it is very rare that one ever gets a color, for the atmosphere of the city merges all the colors of the spectrum into one color, perfectly insulating with each suggestion of others. That is why in interior painting, like the work of the decorator, there is seldom a pure color. He tries for plain air, for atmosphere for the shading which gives life and sunlight.

But by the electric light—ground in the shops steps at night—darkness. There seems to be in which the colors are laid out stand out hard, clear, pure, and the other, in sharp contrast, they have the beauty of the pure, of distinguished purity, have not the glamour of softness of outline of indefinite extension into space. Indeed the space is wiped out altogether, and the dimensioned screen, as it were, thrown the electric light, brings in poignant intensity the pure color of the objects.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Hunting In Bygone Days.

What long apprenticeship the young hunters had to serve in bygone days! Gaston de Foix considered that training should be made when the child had reached the age of 7, when it could be placed in the kennels. King Charles says that to become a gentleman hunter the young gentleman was sent to the forest for the post of veneur, should be at the age of 12. The most important and well built, he must have good sense, and especially a quick and precise judgment. One of the principal requisites is that he should be cheerful. Alas, 150 years later we find the same thing, the young gentleman being sent to the forest to qualify a veneur. It was not only the veneur who was the hunting establishment, but the royal masters took such pains to select in everything connected with the chase that most of them knew and bound by name, and on the other hand, a hunting would name each day that was to be taken out. They prided themselves on being able to follow the hounds in the morning and quick for and harbor the stag.—Pall Mall Magazine.

ELLSWORTH NEWS.

High School Alumni Association Proposed to be Formed.

Clothesline Thieves on the Rampage Again—Verdict of Guilty in Larceny Case—Other Cases of Celebrated Dawes Brothers—Railroad Hearing—Notes.

(Special to Whig and Courier.)

Ellsworth, April 20. Principal Hoyt A. Moore, of the High school, has called for a meeting of the alumni and alumnae of the school at the school building on Bridge hill Saturday afternoon of this week, when he hopes to have an alumni association organized. Ellsworth is behind many other towns in her lack of such an association, the benefits of which are too well known to need a rehearsal. Every resident graduate ought to make an effort to attend the meeting for organization and help push this movement for the school's advancement. The list of distinguished graduates of the E. H. S. is so large that the success of her alumni association is assured in advance, but it will come all the quicker if an enthusiastic start is made. Mr. Moore is a worker and a number of friends have promised their earnest support in the matter. The meeting on Saturday will be called to order at 8 o'clock. Graduates are urged to come and to bring others with them.

The third victim of clothesline robbery in this city within the past fortnight is Mr. Clement, the huckster, who lost some wearing apparel Monday night.

A meeting of the Camera Club was held in the newly fitted up rooms in the Eddy building on Main street, Tuesday evening. I. C. Burrill was admitted to membership. Other business was transacted. The next business meeting will be held in the club rooms on next Monday evening at 7 o'clock.

A verdict of guilty of larceny was brought in by the jury Wednesday morning against John Arthur and Jos. Dawes, of Tinker's Island, who were tried with their brother David, Tuesday. David was found not guilty. He was defended by Attorney E. S. Clark, of Bar Harbor. D. E. Hurley, of this city, was counsel for the other two men. Joe Dawes was up Wednesday morning for alleged receiving stolen goods, but when County Attorney Bunker had put in all his evidence against the man, the court asked the jury to find a verdict of not guilty, which they did without leaving their seats.

John Arthur, Charles and David were being tried Wednesday on another larceny indictment to which they had previously pleaded not guilty. Shortly after the opening of the afternoon session the attorneys for the prisoners and for the state held a consultation with Justice Wiswell, and then Attorneys Hurley and Clark were closeted a few minutes with their clients. The result was that all four of the Dawes brothers, retracted their previous pleas and said they were guilty of larceny repeating the word after their counsel as if they hadn't the slightest idea of its meaning. They were taken back to the county jail by Sheriff Hooper.

Two verdicts were brought in against John Arthur; one verdict and a plea were recorded against Charles. David and Joe had each a plea against them. The charges were larceny. The sentences, it is thought, will be pronounced tomorrow. Mr. A. F. Smith suffered three paralytic shocks yesterday. Since 9:30 yesterday he has been unconscious. His recovery is despaired of by his family. Mr. Fred S. Smith of Gardner, arrived in Ellsworth this morning to be at his father's bedside.

Mr. Charles M. Green, formerly assistant superintendent of the Ellsworth Electric Illuminating Company, but now employed by the General Electric Company, of Lynn, Mass., returned Tuesday after a week's visit to friends in this city.

A regular meeting of the Literature Club was held on Tuesday evening with Mrs. W. H. Titus on Park street. Miss Georgie H. Fraser read a paper on "Ideals of Duty and Helpfulness." Rev. W. R. Hunt gave an interesting talk on "Brotherhood."

The officers of the Women's Missionary Society of the Baptist church, recently elected, are: Mrs. C. S. Allen, president; Mrs. E. B. Tinker, vice president; Mrs. James L. Cook, secretary; Mrs. E. L. Curtis, treasurer.

A hearing before the state railroad commissioners in regard to the proposed change in the line of the Washington county railroad near the terminus at the Batchelder farm near this city, was held yesterday. The county commissioners representing the people objected to the change. The decision of the commissioners was reserved.

SANGERVILLE NEWS.

Some Bold Operations in Town—Effect of War on Prices—News Notes.

(Special to Whig and Courier.)

Sangerville, April 19. F. S. Carr has vouched up his lumber operations and returned home. He is about to begin the erection of a two story building on one of his lots on the hill beside the reservoir. Mr. Carr has been instrumental in the building up of this place to its present growth and his labors are appreciated by his townpeople.

Rev. Mr. Townsend, of Dover, was in town today, accompanied by Rev. R. H. Aldrich, of Guilford.

D. R. Campbell and Sons are fixing up the interior of their tenements on Hill street.

Melvin Bigelow, representing Austed, Burk & Co., merchant millers, of Springfield, Ohio, was in town today. The cycle season is again open. It is the sign of springtime.

In conversation the other day with J. F. Jack, who represents the Twitchell-Hampden Co., of Portland, one of the largest wholesale grocers in New England, the writer had an opportunity to ascertain what effect the present crisis could have in affecting that business. Mr. Jack said the tendency today was in advance in price on molasses, coffee, tea and other products that were purchased from that and other islands where he confided was likely to occur. He stated that their firm had an order placed for some 800 hogheads of Porto Rico molasses which it was impossible to get at as no captain could be secured to proceed with the cargo. Also the prospects of a war with a revenue on these goods is making the retail trade purchase in large quantities.

From the number of commercial travelers who visit this place every two weeks regular besides the transient it would indicate that no small business was done by our manufacturers and merchants.

W. B. Gray, Esq., went to Mill Tuesday on business.

There will be a prize shooting match here Fast Day. Johnny get your gun. E. K. Clark, night watch in the Carleton mill, is confined to the house with sickness.

H. O. Gray is completing his large lock on Main street.

Fred Tree, the barber, has partitioned room off in his shop for a cobbler repair shop and is ready to attend to all business in that line.

OLDTOWN NEWS.

Accident on Rail Delays B. O. & O. Traffic Wednesday.

Festival Chorus Will Not Come to Bangor This Week—Pullen Symphony Orchestra Concert Friday Evening—News Notes.

(Special to Whig and Courier.)

Oldtown, April 20. The cemetery board met last night and elected the following officers: Hon. James Weymouth, president; E. H. Alford secretary, John B. Buzzell, superintendent of Forest Hill cemetery; J. W. Dutton, superintendent of Riverside cemetery at Stillwater, Chas. W. Holmes, superintendent of West Oldtown cemetery.

The remains of Mrs. Henry Davies, formerly of this city, but latterly of Lewiston, who died last winter, arrived here last night for interment. The remains have been in the receiving tomb at Lewiston since Mrs. Davies' death. Mr. Davies, a son of the deceased, and J. W. Peery, a former resident of Oldtown, accompanied the remains.

Mrs. Barker, of Dexter, is in Oldtown visiting Mrs. Lyman Hawkes. Mrs. Barker is a sister of the late Mr. Orrin Fitzgerald and has been in Massachusetts on business connected with settling up the affairs of the doctor's estate.

Arrivals at Cousins' Hotel: L. R. Wiley, Bangor; F. E. Davis, Boston. J. Duggin, of Orono, was in town today.

On Thursday evening there will be a smoke talk at the Union Lodge, A. O. U. W. Grand Master Workman Danforth, of Skowhegan, will be present and give an address. Several other prominent workmen are expected to be present.

Mr. Frank Holmes, of Orono, was in the city Tuesday on business.

Mrs. J. L. Smith, who has been confined to his home by illness for some time, is so much improved as to ride out Tuesday.

The Oldtown festival chorus voted at the rehearsal last evening not to go to Bangor Friday evening to unite in rehearsal with the Orono and Ellsworth choruses as was expected, on account of many members of the chorus desiring to attend the symphony concert to be given in this city by Pullen's orchestra on that evening. The chorus, however, will be the musical event of the season. A large number of tickets have already been sold.

Quite a number of base ball enthusiasts are planning to attend the game at Orono Saturday between the University of Maine and the Coburn Classical Institute team, of Waterville.

Mr. Levi B. Patten, of Bangor, was in the city Tuesday. Mr. Patten is quite sick at his home with the measles.

Mrs. C. B. Bors has a new upright piano.

Miss Frances Murphy, principal of the North intermediate school, is quite ill at her home on Brunswick street.

Mr. George A. Gray went to Dexter Wednesday on business.

E. Mills McCausland is in town today.

B. A. Withee and J. F. Spaulding, of Skowhegan, were in town recently visiting friends before leaving for Klondike. They will join a party in Boston and go from that point in company.

Arrivals at Crocker Hotel: A. W. Patterson, Bangor; W. H. Shaw, Boston; J. W. Hinch, Bangor.

The Women's Relief Corps held a practice initiation with the new E. G. S. last night.

Engene Dudley, of Brownville, was in town today at the Bridge House.

The little bridge, so called, between the city and Treat and Webster's island, is undergoing repairs.

Geo. H. Perry, formerly leader of the Oldtown choir, has been engaged to go to Orono three evenings per week as instructor of the University of Maine band.

Chas. Lowell has taken the job to make some repairs on the house recently purchased by C. A. Alford of L. A. Buzzell.

Mrs. Mary A. Alford has returned from Jefferson, whither she was called by the death of her uncle, Albert Hinchinson, who was a member of the firm of A. & J. V. Richardson, which for many years did business here.

DOVER AND FOXCROFT.

Resignation of Capt. Pollard of Co. F Causes Surprise.

First Lieut. Brown Will Probably Succeed Him—Call for Recruits—Interesting Workers' Week Service—News Notes.

(Special to Whig and Courier.)
Forscroft, April 20. The Ladies' Aid society of the Methodist Episcopal church served a supper in the church parlors last evening from 5.30 o'clock to which was well attended, the vestry being filled and the proceeds large.

Rev. Manley B. Townsend of the Unitarian church was out of town yesterday.

L. D. Thurston has the Whig and Courier for sale in the morning.

Miss Hope Whitten of Presque Isle, her cousin, Mrs. L. O. Ludwig, of Milton, are the guests of Rev. and Mrs. C. Whidden for a few days.

Miss Hattie Off is seriously ill with pneumonia.

E. B. Spearling has sold the Guilford mill of his Piscataquis steam laundry J. C. Hecock, at that place, who has been employed by Mr. Spearling for several months and who will continue in business.

The programme for the Workers' meeting yesterday was as follows: 7.30, praise service; Bible reading; 8.00, teachers' mistakes and difficulties; 8.30, praise service; Bible reading; 9.00, the art of illustrating; (a) story; (b) word pictures; (c) objects; (d) ekphrastic; (e) symbols, etc.; and map.

These exercises were held in the People's Baptist church and are conducted by Mr. George H. Hibbard, general secretary of the State Sunday School Association, are very interesting and instructive. The attendance is constantly increasing. Mr. Hibbard, who for several years has made a rough study of the work, illustrates by means of maps and blackboards. At 8 o'clock Mr. Hibbard read the first of the primary class and the primary union and in the evening of the important subjects of the work was taken up. The speaker showed his method in the matter of "How to teach, train, and punish our children."

The resignation of Capt. W. T. Pollard, commander of Co. F, second regiment, N. G. S. M. Monday evening caused considerable surprise among the officers of the company. Capt. Pollard has been commander of the company for several years and will probably be succeeded by First Lieutenant Calvin W. Wain, who is well fitted for the position as previous to his last enlistment has been an officer in the company.

Douglas Guards held a special drill last night. A call for 15 recruits to place the company on a war footing was issued today and these will be speedily filled as many of our young men are anxious to enlist in their country's service.

Residing Elder E. H. Roynton was in town last night and left this morning on train for Guilford.

SELECTIONS OF A BACHELOR woman is always willing to keep her man's secret from every woman in the world but herself.

Every woman has her moments when she wonders whether love really makes or getting the man.

Michael probably always threw it up to her that he once wanted her bad enough to work fourteen years for her.

Every girl has a foolish idea that she can take away some man's headache by laying her cool hand on his forehead.

When a man sees a girl look at him so all the while of her eyes, he can be pretty sure she is trying to get her whole soul into her gaze.

It is a girl's mouth is the bigger she can kiss.

When a girl's heart gets full about a man as her stomach gets empty, then a girl once falls in love she has to look kind of thoughtfully at pictures of angels that she sees.

When a woman loves a man she loves in spite of his faults. When a man loves a woman he loves her faults and her virtues.

When a man has once proposed to a woman he takes to looking sorry and sympathetic at all the widows she sees in the street.

FROM THE DIAMOND. Due is strengthening the New Order in good shape, and promises to give a team that will make things go for all corners. He made a good showing in securing Wehl, the outfielder, Friel, the pitcher. The latter ought to be a very valuable man.

Players in the bud do not always forego approaching greatness. The manager once gave Catcher Bergen a trial game in Northampton, and Manager did not consider him good enough. He afterward went to Kansas and it cost a cool thousand to get him.

Man Long has a brother who is anxious to burst into the baseball field as an infielder, and Herman says a good one.

ABOUT STRAWBERRIES.

The Secret of Success in Their Cultivation—Experience With Fertilizers.

The secret of success in the cultivation of strawberries, as told in The American Cultivator by a New York farmer, is to have them before the weeds become large enough to interfere with the hoeing and also to properly restrict the runners. Great vigor and ability to make lots of plants are admirable attributes in any variety of strawberry, but this natural tendency must be checked if we are to pick large crops of berries. Therefore, if best results are wanted, allow the parent plant to send out only four to five runners, layering them at intervals about the parent, where the young plant will soon develop to large proportions, soon rivaling the mother in size. Keep off all other runners for the balance of the season. The later formed plants, even if allowed to grow, would never get large enough to bear much fruit and would detract much from the fruitfulness of the others.

A second point made by this writer is on the use of fertilizers: About one ton of commercial fertilizers should be applied to every acre of strawberries, and more if the previous manuring has been partially neglected. It should analyze at least 5 per cent nitrogen, 10 per cent phosphoric acid and 10 per cent potash. It may be applied, 500 pounds before the plants are set in the spring, scattered over the surface broadcast and harrowed in, 500 pounds during the growing season, scattered about the plants and hoed in, and the balance in the spring of the fruiting year, before the plants begin to grow. A good time to apply it is on the last little snow that we get early in April. To those unfamiliar with the results of heavy fertilizing this seems a large amount to apply to one acre, but results have shown that it will surely pay.

Experiments have been carried on in this section and it has been found that, generally speaking, a mixed fertilizer—viz, one having all the three elements in its make up, will produce the best results on most farms. A few isolated cases are reported where nitrogen used alone will bring results equally as good as when all the elements were used. The same is true of phosphoric acid and potash. The latter seems to always affect the color and the firmness of the fruit favorably, yet in the majority of cases the three elements are necessary in the fertilizers we use—nitrogen to make vigor of plants and size of fruit, phosphoric acid to perfect the seeds and consequently the shape of the berry and potash to give firmness to the fruiting stalks and berries as well as flavor and color to the fruit.

Indian Corn as an Export.

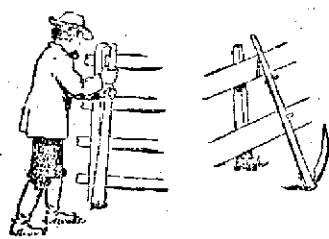

One of the most interesting features of our export trade during 1897, noted in the report on foreign trade by the department of agriculture, is the remarkable increase that took place in the quantity of Indian corn disposed of abroad, the total shipments of the year aggregating as high as 170,316,265 bushels, and thus surpassing by a wide margin all previous records. The exports of the year preceding, although reaching the exceptionally high aggregate of 99,992,835 bushels, were exceeded in 1897 by more than 75,000,000 bushels. It is also noted that the shipments of corn during the past year, while less in value, were in quantity more than twice as large as the exports of wheat and also much larger than those of wheat and wheat flour combined. The value of the corn sent to foreign markets in 1897 was $54,044,132 as against $37,836,862 in 1896. In the two years mentioned the average export price per bushel declined from 37.8 cents to 30.6 cents.

Planting and Harvesting Sugar Beets.

The main consideration to be kept in mind in New York, as recommended by the agricultural station of that state, in respect to time of planting sugar beets, is to allow sufficient time for complete maturing. Taking seasons as they average, the planting can usually be done in May. In planting later than June 1, much risk is incurred in reference to the proper ripening of the crop. Before harvesting the beets should ripen completely, since immature beets contain less sugar than the ripe ones. At maturity the leaves turn yellowish green and the outer ones bend down about the beet. It requires about 150 days for a crop to develop its highest sugar content, varying, of course, with the character of the season. Harvesting must take place before the second growth commences, since this decreases the amount of sugar.

Homemade Tools.

A section of wooden wagon makes a good runner for planting posts. Or take a two inch iron water pipe, to be had of a plumber, and fit a piece of white oak in each end, one for the handle, the other at the bottom to ram down. Make a tight fit in each end. For cutting out old canes from raspberry or blackberry bushes nothing surpasses for convenience or effectiveness the implement shown in the cut. Get a "stub" scythe and make a perfectly straight snath, using the handles and ends of a worn-out snath. This gives a direct pull upon the bushes and is very effective. These useful implements are illustrated and described by The Farm Journal.
